

Epaminondas Lambadarios Geneva LLM MIDS Scholarship
30/1/2020

Epaminondas Lambadarios Geneva LLM MIDS Scholarship

Lambadarios Law Firm proudly announces its partnership with the Geneva LL.M. in International Dispute Settlement (MIDS), in the form of a Scholarship in memoriam of Epaminondas Lambadarios.

The Epaminondas Lambadarios MIDS Scholarship has been set up to support students graduating from Greek universities and aiming at furthering their education with graduate study of International Dispute Settlement in the leading program offered by the Geneva Center for International Dispute Settlement (CIDS) in Switzerland.

The Epaminondas Lambadarios Scholarship shall be awarded, on a yearly basis, to a graduate of a Greek law school admitted to the MIDS Program, on the basis of both social and academic criteria, assessed by a selection committee constituted by practitioners with a strong academic background. The Scholarship shall partially cover the student's tuition fees.

Epaminondas Lambadarios has been an eminent arbitration practitioner and arbitrator. Lambadarios Law Firm wishes to support young Greek lawyers wishing to expand their knowledge and academic study with a leading LLM in the field of international dispute settlement. MIDS' record and proven quality guarantees that such heritage be preserved.

The MIDS is a one-year full-time graduate program offering a holistic training on international dispute settlement. This leading program relies on a distinguished faculty and a talented class aiming at building a successful career as well-rounded lawyers in all four corners of international dispute settlement.

The past decades have seen a radical increase in international dispute settlement procedures, especially in the fields of international commerce, investment and the protection of the environment. International courts, international arbitration and mediation are increasingly taking center-stage in the international legal arena.

International disputes involve both private and public international law issues. Dispute settlement mechanisms overlap, conflict, and influence each other. The times when specialization in one field was sufficient are gone. Leaders in the field must now have a solid understanding of all the major international dispute settlement tools worldwide.

With its unique faculty members, the MIDS caters to these needs and offers students a unique opportunity to learn from world class professors and practitioners.

The MIDS curriculum is designed to meet the educational needs that arise from this evolution. It teaches about dispute settlement from a holistic perspective and covers all its aspects, both private and public. It is global in terms of format and faculty. The professors are some of the most prominent experts in each field of international dispute settlement and come from the USA, South America, Asia, Africa and throughout Europe. Its structure combines the multicultural approach to legal studies in Continental Europe with the interactive teaching method of the United States and the small-group tutorial system of Oxford and Cambridge. Class size is kept relatively small (35-40 students) to ensure maximum interaction between faculty and students.

How to apply for the Epaminondas Lambadarios MIDS Scholarship

Students who have been accepted to the MIDS program (have received the admission letter) and have applied for financial aid are eligible to participate in the selection for this grant. Their files will be transmitted to the Epaminondas Lambadarios Scholarship Committee.

The Committee is comprised by leading academics and professionals of the arbitration and private international law community in Greece. The Committee is chaired by Dr. Anastasios Gourgourinis, lecturer of Public International Law at Athens University and its members are Mr. Alexander Fessas, Secretary General of the ICC International Court of Arbitration, Dr. Alexander Metallinos, partner at Karatza and Partners law firm in Athens and Dr. George Panopoulos, partner at Lambadarios law firm in Athens.

The Committee will select one student for the Epaminondas Lambadarios Scholarship which will cover part the selected student's tuition and living expenses in Geneva for one year in Geneva.
